EXPACE

The EXPACE office furniture features the "Spine" panel, a new design concept that houses numerous network wires and cables neatly inside the Spine panels. This Spine-based system serves as a backbone for flexible office layouts, freely accommodating desks, shelves, low walls, storage cabinets and other accessories. Desks and cabinet units can be arranged as needed without wire and cable restrictions.

Spine

The spine does much more than run wires or cables through a partition; the panels provide independent access to electrical power and computer networks. The spine system enhances IT utilization in the offices of today's information society. Also, personal space is added to the open-plan office layout.

The spine comes with two types of legs; one with a leg on one side and the other with on legs both sides. The former as shown in a picture #2 allows the panel to be placed next to a wall or walkway, enhancing space utilization efficiency.

The spine panels are highly stable, free-standing and easy to connect in a line.

Spine (In IT office)

The spine panels house numerous cables and provide secure access to electrical power and the computer network, serving as the backbone of the office wiring system. The desks as well as other office furniture can be positioned as desired, allowing for maximum IT utilization.

Each spine panel features a 110mm (4 1/4") wide holder to organize wires and cables neatly inside. The wires can run through either horizontally or vertically.

EXPACE

Spine (In open plan office)

The spine panels that make up the wiring system backbone are also the spatial boundaries in the open-plan office. Desks and other furniture can be laid out in various configurations within this framework; the workspace is structured yet can be altered as needed.

The belt tiles, which are made of high precision injection molded plastic, are easily detachable to facilitate cable management.

The Pre-coated metal(PCM) finishing tile is attached to on the lower part of the panel with magnets for easy installation and maintenance.

The spine also comes with attachable shelves to hold office machines, books or other items, ensuring additional independent space.

The spine's attachable shelves are solidly secured with die-cast aluminum brackets that also look great.

Worksurface

The typical desk is cluttered with various cords that plug the computer, keyboard and other equipment into the power source. The EXPACE environment is uncluttered. In addition, the EXPACE desk can be moved easily at any time. The diverse wires and cables are all centrally organized inside the spine, while the office equipment, books and documents are placed on shelves that are attached to the spine. The spine remains stationary, while the desks and tables can be positioned in numerous ways, allowing the office space to be rearranged quickly and easily.

The aluminum legs are attached without having the bolts exposed. The appearance is simple yet sophisticated.

Privacy can be maintained for any layout configuration, as a screen can be attached on the desk worktop and a modesty panel can be added when necessary.

The desk and shelves attached to the spine are of different heights, letting the user increase or reduce the work surface as needed. A cushioning material covers the underside of the shelf brackets to minimize impact with the desk.
